IN OUR BOOK
WE DEDICATE

ON AUGUST 19, 1938, nine Sisters of Saint Joseph of Carondelet embarked for Honolulu in Hawaii to establish the first foreign mission of the Congregation. With dauntless eagerness and fearless ardor, they began anew as laborers in the Master's vineyard. Across the miles of sea and land, their spirit, like a powerful searchlight beam, reaches us and causes a new hope to spring up in our hearts. For even in the midst of this world of chaos and shattered ideals, we see some valiant souls who retain their sense of values and an awareness of their Eternal Destiny. From such as these missionaries, we may imbibe the power to rise to the highest type of Catholic womanhood. With their inspired example before our minds, we lovingly dedicate this book to these nine Sisters in Hawaii.

Music Department

The Fontbonne Music Department is the continuation of the music department that was so long a part of St. Joseph's Academy at Carondelet. With the opening of the college in 1925, the music department began to function as one of the most important departments in the school. The first teachers on the staff were Sister Clarine, Sister Marie de Lourdes, Sister Louis Joseph, Sister Teresa Martin, and Sister Rose Catherine. Sister Callista, Sister Alberta, and Sister Charitine later spent several years as members of the faculty. The present members of the staff are: Sister Marie de Lourdes, Sister Rose Catherine, and Sister John Joseph, head of the department.

At the present time, students in the college may take music theory as an elective, as a major, or as a minor toward an A.B. degree. A bachelor of music degree is now offered with a major in theory, instrumental music, or voice.

Each year finds additions and improvements in the department. Sigma

Beta Mu, active music club, is responsible for many of these changes. Several years ago the club had a stage built in the recital hall proper as a setting for the Steinway Grand. Included in its donations to the music library are books, records of symphonies, and a set of Seashore Talent

Test records with an R. C. A. Victrola. The Seashore Tests, which measure innate musical ability, have been given to more than 800 individuals.

Among the latest acquisitions of departmental equipment are two Steinway Grand Pianos, one for the recital hall, the second for one of the studios. Two upright pianos were also acquired for the use of the piano ensemble class, made up of nine students in the department. This class has given Sigma Beta Mu members an opportunity for hearing some of the excellent material written for two and four players, as well as arrangements of symphonies, overtures, Bach chorales, and many other types of work not possible on solo piano.

For the last five years the music department has sponsored the sale of tickets for the weekly concerts of the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra.

During the first year, a sale of 180 tickets was made, and each year has found an increase in sales until this year's high of 420 was reached.

These concerts are not only an advantage to the students in giving them an opportunity for hearing symphony work, but also for hearing famous soloists brought to St. Louis to perform with the well-known orchestra.

Artists who have appeared at Fontbonne under the sponsorship of the Music Department include Edward Collins, Gari Shelton, the Ford Mixed Quartet, soloists from the Ford Symphony Hour, former artists with the San Carlo and Metropolitan Opera Companies, and the quartet from the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra.

This past year the Choral Club has had as its outstanding director, Don E.

Vitry, O. S. B., nationally known authority on Gregorian Chant. Don Vitry directed the cantata, Bethlehem, which was given by 400 picked voices at the National Music Educator's Convention held in St. Louis. Fontbonne was very proud of three of its music students, Catherine Knaapen, Betty

Sturrock, and Lee Maguire, who were chosen as accompanists for this performance.

Many former students are now holding responsible positions. Martha Redmond has a class of thirty private pupils in her home town, Sedalia, Missouri; Kathleen Sloan has charge of the choral work and orchestra at the public school in Thomasville, Missouri; Leontine Meyer is a choral teacher at Southwest High School; Antoinette

Bafunno is organist and choir director at St. Mary Mag-dalene's Church; Eileen Irvine was an assistant to a senior music supervisor in Springfield, Illinois; Elizabeth

Monnig was, until recently, organist at Holy Angels'

Church; Grace Christman is a private teacher, accompanist, and choral director in Harrisburg, Illinois. Betty

Sturrock, of the present senior class, has been organist at Nativity Church for two years and also accompanist for Miss Anna Aggress, dancing director.

Home Economics Department

A glance at the new blue-covered bulletin published in 1939 by Fontbonne's Home Economics Department will give an idea of the wide scope of the present department. In this bulletin are listed five distinct types of Home Economics curricula: General Home Economics, Teacher Training, Textiles and Clothing, Related Art, and Food and Nutrition. The Food and Nutrition curriculum includes the subject-matter required by the American Dietetic Association for those who wish to become hospital dietitians. At the present time a student may choose any one of these five phases of Home Economics for a major sequence toward a Bachelor of Science degree in Home Economics.

The phenomenal growth of the department during a period of fifteen years is evident from a comparison between the 1939 bulletin and the offerings of the department in 1924. Neither a major or minor sequence was obtainable in 1924. The following courses in homemaking were offered for those whose interests lay in that direction: Elementary Food Preparation, Advanced Cookery and Table Service, Elementary Sewing, Dressmaking, Needlework, and Food Nutrition. The foods courses were given in what is now St. Joseph's Academy foods laboratory on first floor, Ryan Hall, and the clothing courses were given on third floor, Fine Arts Hall.

The department grew with an increase in the number of interested students and in 1926 a minor sequence in Home Economics was offered. The courses were classified as suitable for junior college or senior college as follows: Junior College—Elementary Sewing, Garment Construction A, Garment Construction B, Textiles, Costume Design, Cooking A, Cooking B, Cooking C, and Millinery. Senior College—Advanced Textiles, Needlework, Dressmaking, Advanced Cooking, Food and Dietetics, and Interior Decoration.

A very significant milestone was passed in 1930, when the college granted a Bachelor of Science in Home Economics to two students: Miss Ethel Daily, who died in 1935, and Miss Madeline Dawkins. New courses offered in 1931 were: Food Production and Marketing, Home Nursing, Costume Design, Cafeteria Management, Child Care, Supervised Teaching of Home Economics, Household Administration, and Experimental Cookery.

The completion of the new Home Economics laboratories on third floor Science Hall in 1932 began the rapid expansion which has since characterized the department. In 1933 a core of constants were formulated for freshman and sophomore year, and an opportunity was offered to choose between Teacher Training, General Home Economics, or Food and Dietetics as a major in the junior year.

During the next six years a constant increase in the number of students was followed by an increase in the number of faculty members and improvements in equipment. The five members of the present staff bring to the department not only adequate academic training, but a wide variety of experiences. Graduate work done at Kansas State College, the universities of Chicago, Kansas, Minnesota, Missouri, and Wisconsin has brought the instructors into contact with leaders in every field of home economics in the state offering Quantity Cookery and Institutional Management. The fine spirit of self-sacrifice, loyalty, and cooperation which has existed between administrative officers, faculty, and students has made possible this remarkable growth, and will also be the means of continued growth.
