

CETL FALL 2021

LEARNING CIRCLE: SAVORING THE PROCESS OF TEACHING

We've learned a lot in the past year. Teaching will look different after a pandemic and teaching is always evolving. How do we find the joy in teaching and savor the process? We will read various authors', researchers', and approaches to how we focus on teaching without losing the context of what is going on in our world. This will be a learning circle you won't want to miss! (many analogies to cooking will be used and it will be delicious)

Please join us for a 4-meeting opportunity to focus on your teaching in a learning community. You will find this opportunity to be engaging, motivating, and beneficial to you as the instructor, but most importantly to your students.

Time commitment:

4 one-hour meetings throughout the semester:

Approximately 6-10 hours of reflection/reading time

Approximately 3-6 hours of work on your teaching skill

Benefits:

- Engage with other faculty about teaching
- Develop your teaching skills
- Professional Development Certificate after completion.
Can be used for dossier and annual self-evaluations
- Increased enjoyment in teaching, decreased burnout and enhanced student outcomes in your class(es)

MEETING DATES

Meeting location and modality TBD
