THE FONTBONNE

FOR

1947

In youth's glad fair maytime,
We came to your arms.

The Fontbonne for 1947

"Where are the mountains?" they asked.

I, pointing, answered, "There."

"And where is Truth?" they queried;

I, faltering, echoed, "Where?"

Fontbonne gives this answer; that is why we love it. To those who have loved it in the past, to those who will come to love it in the future, and to those who are this year leaving Fontbonne, we dedicate this book.

*On leave—Missouri University.

*We are seekers of Truth. Unaided we struggle Along the road to our goal. The road is long
And covered with a dense fog. Bearers of wrong
Stretched forth their hands and grasped
At us. They laughed gleefully at our attempts
To escape their clutches. But suddenly,
From out of the darkness we saw before us a Magnificent Light. This
Is what we sought—a means—a guide—a way of Life that surely leads to Truth.*

The Junior Class

It seems that the Junior Class hit a new high in social events. The school year was ushered in by a fall dance, which paved the long road for the year's activities showing the Fontbonnites the lighter side of college life. This success was soon succeeded by the annual prom given in the Gold Room of the Jefferson Hotel. The prom was a gala event, with the finest of the fine prevailing; fine food, good music, atmosphere, and the permanent return of men to civilian life.

There were then the usual cake sales, raffles, and chances, and in spring a campus dance given in the gymnasium.

Each dance was different, each dance was fun, each dance won the Junior Class more acquaintances and closer friends.

Sophomores

To the Sophomore Class goes the credit of inaugurating the first Tea Dance on the campus. A huge success . . . the den was filled with men, women, and cokes . . . all having a wonderful time. The idea of these Sunday afternoon tea dances was then incorporated by the other classes, and many Sunday afternoons of the same type then followed, and thus, the college itself and the corporate colleges were brought together into a closer union.

This was not the only new idea the sophomores introduced. Early in fall an off-campus dance was given in the Ivory Room of the Jefferson Hotel, with swishing skirts and merriment at its peak. The other classes observed the success, voiced at their own class meetings their opinions to have a similar affair in the near future.

The sophomores had their share of cake sales and raffles, between studying for tests, exams, and that all-important final Humanities Comprehensive, but with all this there was always time to support a class project, a school dance, to attend a basketball game, and to go all-out for Fontbonne.

The class with school spirit, the real school spirit that typifies the Fontbonne girl. At any school activity there was always a high attendance of the Freshman Class. Our cheer leaders were all freshmen who by their vivacious personalities spurred the team on to victory. The team itself had a nine girl representation.

The outstanding event of the freshman activities was the spring prom given at Norwood Country Club. The date was perfect, just at a time when feelings were rather low, the approaching of exams. If anyone missed this dance it was not through the fault of any member of the class; the publicity was smart, cleverly done, and most effective. The outcome of the dance could be nothing but a sure success, and from the feeling, talk, and attitude of those who attended, it was that.

We, the Freshmen, came to Fontbonne to find Truth . . . it didn't matter in which field we pursued it, or in what type of work we were interested, we had a common goal. Beneath all the frivolity and good times, our purpose was furthered. By the end of the year, we were certain we had learned more and had come closer to goal.

We, the Sophomores, persevere in our search for Truth . . . encouraged by the advance made during our Freshman year, we continued at Fontbonne, and were encouraged more, for we had reached the half-way mark along the road to our goal.

We, the Juniors, come near our goal . . . one more year in which to find the Truth . . . that Fontbonne can give us . . . we delve more and more into the field of our choice, and find that though we are but minute parts of a greater Fontbonne, we are important, and will not give up our search.

We, the Seniors, have sought, persevered, and finally attained our goal. For this we thank everyone who has had a part in the search . . . our parents, the administration, the religious and lay faculties, and everyone concerned in the moulding of our characters, and the bringing of light and truth into our lives. No other school could have done the same thing in the wonderful way Fontbonne has done this for us . . . for this we thank you, Fontbonne . . . we will never forget you.

The chant of the "Magnificat,"

The velvet touch of sanctuary silence,

Organ melodies pealing heavenward,

These are our tokens,

The Divine Presence, the glorious mysteries' sweet taste—

These are His gifts—these symbols of Love are given

To a searching Man. Look up and lift your hearts.

For herein Truth is revealed.

The mission unit this year had as its major project, the rebuilding of a church which was entirely demolished by a storm. Little needs, large needs, both here and in the foreign mission fields, are taken care of, if only in a small way, by the work of mercy of the C. S. M. C.

The missions also sponsored a dance at Christmas, the proceeds going to missions located in small towns in and around St. Louis. The dance was a success, as well as the project itself being very profitable.

Representatives in every class make it a private project to pass envelopes for donations before and after religion classes, and the determination and perseverance demonstrated by these "missioners" is a source of inspiration for all the girls of Fontbonne.

Legion of Mary

The Legion of Mary this year has had two praesidia on the campus, thus doing twice as much work, visiting the blind, collecting newspapers, and magazines for the ill and convalescent, and praying for self, sanctification, along with prayer for mankind. Who knows how much these girls did by their weekly meetings and prayer for Fontbonne, as well as for the world in general.

Sodality

With "To Jesus, Through Mary" as their motto, the sodalists of Fontbonne accomplished much this year. The Christmas Basket Campaign, Easter Egg Hunt, May Day, half-hour holy hours, are but some of the sodalists' activities.

With all these serious undertakings, the sodalists ever are "cheerfully Catholic" in their duties as sodalists of Fontbonne and Mary.

In peace as well as in war the Red Cross serves! Now that the war years have passed, the Red Cross, still very active, entertains convalescents at Scott Field, secures subscriptions, gathers bundles for European countries, and these are but some of the major functions of the club.

The aftermath of a war, such as we have just lived through, leaves many small, large, and tremendous things to do. The girls of our unit here at Fontbonne have caught the spirit in giving their best to a cause which needs such help and enthusiasm. Keep it up, Red Cross!

Chemistry, Biology, and Physics, the experimental side as well as the theory, are discussed at these meetings. The club takes an active part in the annual meetings of the Missouri Academy of Science, with some of the members holding offices in this organization.

Movies, experiments, as well as papers on new findings and discoveries, interest the modern "Madame Curies" of Phi Beta Chi . . .

A picnic, with all members present, was held on the back campus during the last part of the year; the aroma of barbecue made many of us wish we had become more scientific minded.

Mrs. Jourchovitch, in spite of the man shortage, accomplished a feat that made her the envy of many a Fontbonne mother. She successfully married off four of her seven daughters in one evening between three curtains. "Seven Sisters," the Footlights Club's performance this year was a light comedy. It sported various fashions of dress, including a knight in armor.

Under the direction of Miss Belle Marie Mullins, the Footlights Club had a very full program this year. Monthly meetings, initiations, play discussions, climaxed by the annual breakfast, made this dramatic club second only to the Lambs.

Fontbonne Athletic Association

Success seems to be one of the by-laws of this club's constitution. Bigger and better attendance at basketball games, the best Penny Circus ever held, intramural sports, Ping Pong tournaments, are a few of the F. A. A.'s goals that were reached this year.

The cheerleaders were tops, the basketball team had the highest average in the city, with a new tradition being inaugurated after the last game of the year.

This was a faculty-student surprise game, and a party given for the team and its supporters climaxed the season's activities. From the profits of the Penny Circus a recording machine was purchased, which can be used in gym classes, as well as for extra-curricular activities.

All in all, the school and girls owe a lot to the F. A. A. for showing real school spirit and ingenuity in making Fontbonne's purple and gold well known and well liked.

They work in harmony. Not only do they sing their parts, be they alto or soprano, but they work together to make the lovely music for which they have become well known, not only on campus but throughout the city as well. Under the capable direction of Sister Victorine, this choral group has become a popular club on the campus. Their concerts and recitals have given much delight to the singers as well as the audiences.

Delta Phi

Modern art, etchings, portraits, prints, clay work, anything in the line of art, are the subjects of this club's study. The art bazaar, the first of its kind at Fontbonne, was a huge success with everything sold.

Wherever we turned, there was another masterpiece, and the hangings on first floor Ryan made many of us stop and wonder, some coming to the conclusion that the "old masters" were in for a lot of competition by the new art masters of Fontbonne. Congratulations, Delta Phi!

A few girls with many accomplishments is what we can say of Sigma Beta Mu—when these music lovers get together you can expect Beethoven, Kern, or Mercer to come forth.

Pianists, sopranos, and advocates of all types of music grace the club's roster, among them many alumnae who are still drawn back by the interesting and informative meetings that are held an evening a month in Fine Arts. The club is also a great help to all the functions sponsored by the music department, going all out for more and better music.
