Ruth Mary Higgins Becomes New Social Secretary For F. C.

Replaces Lenadore A. Bass Who Will Become Manager Of East Side Hotel.

With the resignation of Miss Lenadore A. Bass, '28, as social representative of Fontbonne College, comes the report from the office of the president, Mother M. Palma, that Miss Ruth Higgins, '34, will be her successor.

Miss Bass has accepted the position of manager, to take effect December 1, of the National Catholic Community House, located at 422 St. Louis Ave., East St. Louis, Ill. This house is the principal center for social functions in East St. Louis.

She will be in charge of all the balls, dances, parties, and private luncheons given at the house. In addition, she will be the supervisor of the thirty young women who reside there. Miss Bass intends to make this the headquarters of the Fontbonne College Illinois Club organized a year ago in the interests of the college.

The Most Reverend Henry Althoff, Bishop of Belleville, Ill., is the honorary head of the advisory board of the Community House, and Judge Maurice V. Joyce is the chairman.

Miss Bass received her bachelor of arts degree from Fontbonne College.

Rev. William J. Ryan, S.J., Addresses College Alumnae

The Reverend William J. Ryan, S.J., M.A., faculty director of the alumni association of St. Louis University, will be guest speaker at the meeting of the Fontbonne College Alumnae, Sunday, December 2, at 3:00 p. m. in the alumnae room of Ryan Hall. Father Ryan will discuss general problems concerning alumnae organization, management, and membership.

Mrs. J. Donald Gunn, president of Fontbonne's alumnae, told a reporter of the Font that at the last meeting of the organization a motion was unanimously carried to cancel dues of members in arrears, if they would pay the dues for the current year, 1934-35.

Other officers of the association are: vice-presidents, Misses Mary Aloysia Knapp and Eleanor Reynolds; secretary, Miss Mary Belle McCoole; treasurer, Miss Lucille McDonald.

Eleven New Members To Be Admitted To Fontbonne Sodality, December 7

According to the announcement made by Catherine Scullin, prefect of the Sodality, the formal reception of new members will take place after the celebration of eight o'clock Mass, Friday, December 7, Virginia Guyol, vice-prefect, and Gertrude Bey, secretary, with the prefect, are in charge of arrangements. The Reverend Herbert Walker, S.J., of the Queen's Work, will be the celebrant of the Mass. Father Walker will also officiate at the ceremonies of reception.

Eleven students will be enrolled. They are: Eleanor Amend, Charlotte Berkel, Patricia Janus, Virginia Miller, Elizabeth Harrison, Mary Lou Sackbauer, Marcella Carlton, Leonilla Guay, Margaret McKean, Margaret Salia, and Rose Muschong. Immediately after the ceremonies of reception the entire sodality will recite the Act of Consecration.

C. Scullin

Following the services in the chapel, the annual breakfast will be served in the cafeteria. The prefects of the past two years, Misses Betty Rapp, '33, and Anne Catherine Meyer, '34, have been invited to attend.

After the breakfast a short program arranged by Leontone Meyer and her committee will be presented. As a part of this program The Fatal Quest, "An Unhappy Tragedy in Three Acts", will be given under the direction of Margaret Bernard, chairman of the publicity committee. The cast follows: King, Rita Buechler; Queen, Cecilia Reichert; Duke, Billie McCauley; Princess, Tattie Olivieri; Curtains, Jane O'Connell and Elise Dubuque; Bell, Rosemary Donley.

Student Council Will Meet To Discuss New Amendment

A special meeting of the Student Council will be held Monday, December 3, in 303 Ryan Hall for the purpose of discussing an amendment to the constitution of the Student Association. The proposed amendment would make all officers of the Student Association, members of the Student Council, which is the highest governing body in the school. The constitution, since its drafting in 1927, provides for membership in the council of the president of the association alone.

Section IV of Article III of the constitution reads: "The Student Association shall have an executive body called the Student Council. The moderator of the association, the president of the association, the president and an elected representative of each class, an elected representative of the department of spiritual activities, of athletics, of dramatics, of music, of art, and of the official college publications, shall be members of the Student Council."

After the council has voted on the measure, if it is accepted, it will then be brought before the entire student assembly, the Student Association, for adoption or rejection.

Promising Thespians Placed On Probation List By Club

As the result of an interesting try-out held during the assembly period on November 12, the Footlights Club has placed thirteen students on probation for membership to the club.

Twenty-five students were tested on the basis of characterization, diction, pantomime, and posture; those receiving the highest percentage were accepted. Each applicant read a selection from Shakespeare or a recitation of her own choice.

In accordance with the constitution the selection was limited to ten new members who will take part in dramatic productions. Those accepted for probation are: Tattie Olivieri, Jane O'Connell, Marguerite Roduit, Helene Keaney, Clare Harder, Helen Engelbreit, Sasa Viviano, Lorraine Lake, Lorraine Korte, and Cecelia Reichert. Besides these new members, three pledges wishing to learn the technique of management have also been admitted. These are: Martha Hatch, Virginia Guyol, and Elise Dubuque.

During the period of probation which lasts until February, these pledges are expected to present a one-act play for the members.

Students Enroll As Members Of Braille Transcribing Course

Lessons Given On Special Typewriter; Miss A. Ruenzi, Instructor.

Betty Hoffman, senior, Clare Harder, Melba Durbin, juniors, and Virginia Seifert, sophomore, are members of the newly organized class in Braille Transcribing. The instruction is under the direction of Miss Adaline A. Ruenzi of the Missouri Commission for the Blind. Miss Ruenzi has been delegated by the Missouri Relief and Reconstruction Commission which is sponsoring this student project.

At the first class, which met last Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock in Ryan Hall, the students were acquainted with the course. The Braille system receives its name from Louis Braille, a Frenchman, who, in 1829, devised this way to help the blind.

Lessons will be given for twelve consecutive weeks in the use and technique of the Braille method of typing on a specially constructed typewriter. The keyboard has six keys and a space bar. Six dots, arranged and numbered in domino fashion, form the Braille cell. From this is formulated the Braille alphabet, numerals, capital sign, and apostrophe sign. Impressions peculiar to each letter are made on the paper.

Students who pass the tests and begin their work of actual transcribing will receive a certificate for proficiency from the American National Red Cross.

After sufficient skill and accuracy have been acquired, the students will be allowed to choose a book which they will transcribe from print into Braille. Blind persons will proof-read these manuscripts. The ideal Braille volume contains 90 to 100 pages, but occasionally it is necessary to have a shorter or longer volume. Each chapter begins on a new page.

The completed books will then be

From the office of the Registrar comes the announcement of the change in the schedule of the Christmas holidays. Vacations will begin Thursday, December 20, at noon, instead of Wednesday, December 19. Classes will be resumed Monday, January 7, at eight o'clock. Students absent twenty-four hours before the recess or twenty-four hours after it will receive triple cuts.

Seasonal Suggestions

The time of year that brings joy to the hearts of students is approaching; a time when books can be set aside for a few days, and all attention can be concentrated on much turkey-eating and merry-making. This is a time of thanksgiving, and there is no doubt that we are all very thankful that school is closed for a brief period; that one-fourth of the scholastic year is finished, and that we have passed in our examinations. But amidst all these selfish rejoicings, let us not lose sight of the real purpose of Thanksgiving.

On the first Thanksgiving day the pilgrims gave thanks to God that they were safe in their crude shelters in a strange and bleak land, and that they had enough food to sustain life. When we look around us we see how far we have come since that day on the cold, rocky shore. This land of ours has developed into a symbol of progress holding a position of pride among the great nations of the world. But with all this display of beauty and bounty there are still some among us who must be grateful for having the bare necessities of life. We who are given the luxuries of good homes, and a Catholic education should realize our good fortune and be thankful.

Advent

Almost simultaneous with the Thanksgiving holidays is the opening of a season which is important in the ecclesiastical calendar. Advent, the period preceding and devoted to preparation for the coming of the Savior, is a time of penance and sacrifice. It is well to remember the fact that the worldly customs which have grown up around the season of Christmas should not diminish the observance of the holy practices prescribed by the Church.

The Unwritten Law

The comfortable feeling that final exams will keep their distance for some time gives rise to a false feeling of security about this time of the year. So many distractions are at hand that it seems almost impossible to concentrate on term papers and assignments. This is a false security indeed.

Exams are approaching more rapidly than you think, and much depends on grades. First of all, the attainment of a better-than-average grade should be the aim of every student. Then, too, membership in the Honor Society, the highest possible scholastic achievement in the school, is dangled before your eyes as an incentive to persevere in hard work. A more proximate end for science students is the honor conferred by Phi Beta Chi. This organization selects the two freshmen it considers most outstanding in chemistry and biology, and inscribes their names on a bronze plate.

These are tangible honors, especially designed to induce chest-swelling among proud fathers and to make even eighth cousins feel gratified that the family has at last given indications of intellectual activity. But aside from all this, there is the delightful experience of inner satisfaction if we overcome all feeling of laziness and keep plugging. We guarantee that it is worthwhile.

"A Word To The Wise . . ."

We have all heard with considerable amusement the story of the librarian who disliked having books withdrawn from the library. He was constantly in pursuit of those people who insisted on taking books out. He was happy only when there was not a single vacancy on the shelves.

All of us would be among the first to decry such a lamentable state of affairs. Still, it is one of the rules of the library that certain books must not be removed. This rule has been sadly violated. Sometimes these books on the reserved shelf disappear never to be seen again. Once in a while they reappear innocently enough. Both infringements exhibit a serious lack of consideration and a rather socialistic attitude toward the property of the school.

Those in charge of the library have sent out an urgent appeal to students to cease this abuse of library regulations. It becomes evident that if things still go on in this fashion, we will have to revert to the chained-book system used in the Middle ages.

Teachers, Hostess, Traveller In Recent News of Grads

Alice Wahl, B.S., '33, and Loretta Gidley, B.S., '34, are doing practice teaching in Home Economics at the Good Shepherd Convent on Gravois. Instead of preparing single dishes, their class plans and serves a well balanced meal twice a week during class period.

Helen Heath, A.B., '33, is teaching school in Afton, Missouri.

Mrs. John J. Faust, formerly Elinor Cafarata, A.B., '34, will entertain her classmates of last year on next Sunday, December 2, at a house warming at 745 Westgate Avenue.

Elmire Tesson, A.B., '32, is teaching the fifth, sixth, and seventh grades in the Goliad, Texas public school.

Marcella Highland, '31, returned recently from an enjoyable trip in Mexico.

THE ATTLE ALKS.....

The TATTLER made this sketch of Martha Hatch, a worthy senior, as she was studying for the mid-semester exams.

Dear Jake:

Business is good. The girls have been buying apples most every day 'cause they're having mid-semesters and don't have time to eat breakfast at home. I'm glad apples is nootrichous. I've been awful busy simonising up the Johnathans. (The girls say that's the up-to-date way to say polishing.) They look swell on the outside but they been kind of wormy inside lately. That's on account of the dry spell come last summer. I feel it my Christian duty to tell the girls about it. Being on the level always pays, 'cause most of them buy them any-ways. They say the Dean has been giving them the diet of worms in history class. But they don't seem to complain none at all. They look right healthy too.

I'm not sure I have your right address, so if you don't get this letter, let me know. Answer S.O.S. (That means soon or sooner).

Ameadably yours,

Ann.

P. S.—That wasn't me that died Jake. My friends have been awful worried about that notice in the papers. That Apple Ann was an acteress on Broadway, and you know I never was an acteress.

Green Hydra In Captivity - - Biology Lab. Scene of Phenomena

There was great excitement in the biology laboratory the other day when Sister M. Leonilla, head of the department, discovered a green hydra in a culture. To anyone unacquainted with scientific phenomena this may seem a matter of minor importance, but it caused much comment and aroused a great deal of interest in the biology laboratory.

The first hydra mentioned in history is the monster attacked by Hercules. It had nine heads, and as soon as one was cut off, two others took its place. The ordinary hydra known to scientists possesses the same quality of regeneration in a modified form. It is defined as a fresh-water polyp. The more common species are gray, yellow, or brown. The hydra over which the science department is watching so carefully is more rare and particularly unique in its characteristics. It is a vivid green, hence its name—"hydra viridissima".

Hydras are quite small but after one has become familiar with their appearance, one can see and even study them fairly well without the use of a microscope. A hydra has been described as resembling a "short piece of string with one end frayed out", and this description is a good one if the student is made to realize that a very small bit of string is meant. The frayed ends are tentacles which radiate from the mouth region of the animal. When fully expanded a hydra may be an inch or more in length, and when contracted the entire animal looks like a tiny drop of flesh-colored jelly. It does not attach itself permanently to one place, but it crawls about or swims slowly through the water in a somersault fashion.

Although the above mentioned qualities are animal in nature, the hydra possesses many characteristics of plant life also. The interaction of the plant and animal cells presents one of the most interesting studies in biology. The two cooperate on a fifty-fifty basis, each profiting from the partnership. The algae, or one-celled plants, besides receiving a dwelling place on the hydra, receive also the carbon dioxide necessary for their existence. The hydra in turn furnished with oxygen. This process is called symbiosis. The green hydra lives in the light and dies in the dark, since light is necessary to carry on the process of photosynthesis in the plant cell from which it obtains its food.

Unusual Decorations Provide Spectacular Background For Dance; Rhythmic Music Adds To Elaborate Setting

The snow fall predicted a few weeks ago by Jane Hoffman, chairman of the Student Council, was realized Friday evening in one of the most successful dances given at Fontbonne. The originality of the decorations, for which Marie Pfeifle was responsible, and the smooth rhythm of Ray Dutchik's music combined to make the "Snow Whirl" outstanding among the activities of the year.

"Scottie, The Promerian", Is Guest At Juniors' Bridge

How's your technique this season? Can you win him? Who? Why, the charming personality who promises to be the highlight of the Junior Bridge. The individual who is causing the heart-throbs is "Scottie, The Promerian". Vera Stueber and her prize committee have selected him as guest of honor for the Annual Bridge. He is a sturdy, silver doggie of two and one-half (inches). On his handsome silver chain he carries an attractive silver eversharp.

The juniors, knowing to what heights their "Scottie" can soar, like Pegasus, the winged horse of mythology, have planned to sell his brothers and sisters after the Bridge, December 8. Several attendance prizes, donated by friends of the class, are to be given away. Refreshments, under the supervision of Estelle McCarthy and her committee, are to be served. Since the last issue of THE FONT the place for the Bridge has been changed to the cafeteria. Buy your tickets from the "more-than-willing" juniors. Louise Munsch is general chairman of the affair.

Press Club Defines Rules For Active Membership

Requirements for Press Club membership were defined in a meeting held Monday of this week. The prospective members must be presented by an active member and must have assisted Fontbonne's press activities by "breaking into print" in THE FONT, or failing in that, the metropolitan dailies, county weeklies, or out-of-town papers, or else by securing ads for THE FONT. All stories, ads or subscriptions must equal ten inches when measured. One subscription will be equal to two inches.

Members of the sophomore class will be eligible for membership on THE FONT Staff in January.

New Rules and Regulations To Be Observed In Library

To our Fontbonne students, so delightful to deal with in many ways, and so tantalizing in some, the following recommendations are presented for consideration.

A Code of Good Manners in Library Usage.

1. The library doors are provided with knobs for use, not ornament. Try to make your mark in some other way than by leaving your fingerprints on the glass.

2. The brass guards on the reserve enclosure are adjusted to meet gentle not rude treatment. Place your hand in control, and do not allow the guards to swing violently.

3. The books on reserve are to be used in the library, and returned to the reserve shelf from which they were taken. If violation of this rule continues, the students will have to be denied access to this section entirely. It is selfish to keep four or five books on the table before you, when you can but use one at a time.

4. Dictionaries, encyclopedias, and similar works should be returned to the shelf from which they were taken, not left on the table.

5. Newspapers and magazines should be returned to the proper rack. Magazines are not to be taken from the files. Ask the librarian or her assistants for them, and return them to the same.

6. Newspapers, magazines, and books are not to be defaced by scribbling or marking in any way. Give other people credit for having sufficient intelligence to discern important points without your help.

7. In preparing notes or papers, do not place one open book upon another. This injures the binding.

8. Chairs should be replaced in proper position at the table. Discarded paper should not be left on the table, but should be put in the waste basket.

9. Quiet is to be observed in the reading room and the adjoining hall. Students who wish to study together may use the magazine room or the stack room.

Active members of the Delta Phi held a meeting Tuesday evening in their studio, Fine Arts Building. Work on the Christmas cards was begun in the afternoon and continued throughout the evening. Supper was prepared and served in the kitchenette by members of the club.

Delta Phi plans to hold regular meetings on Tuesday evening until the end of the Christmas Season. After that time another date will be set for the meeting.

Members of Sigma Beta Mu met in the Fine Arts Building on Tuesday, November 13. After a short business meeting the program committee presented the life of Bach and Debussy showing the contrast in their character and style of work. The well defined polyphonic style of Bach was interpreted by Mary Louise Knochel in the "C Minor Fugue" from the Well Tempered Clavichord, and "Aria and Gigue" from the English Suite in D. This afforded a vivid contrast to the elusive beauty of Debussy's exquisite "Prelude" played by Leontone Meyer, and the charming "Serenade of the Dolls", "Golliwogg's Cake Walk", and "Gardens in the Rain" played by Martha Redmond.

Mission Crusade Announces Two Important Projects

The Fontbonne unit of the Catholic Students' Mission Crusade announced two important projects at its meeting last week. The first is the spiritual bouquet to be presented December 20 to His Excellency, John J. Glennon, D.D., Archbishop of St. Louis, Mo., on the occasion of his golden sacerdotal jubilee. During the campaign which closed last week, Fontbonne students made the following offering: Masses, 474; Holy Communion, 452; Visits, 517; Rosaries, 387; Ejaculations, 7892.

The second subject concerns the lecture of Reverend Bernard H. Hubbard, S.J., to be delivered tonight at 8:15 o'clock in the Municipal Auditorium. Father Hubbard, known as "the glacier priest", will present the latest thrilling adventures in the unexplored wilds of Alaska. Tickets sell for one dollar, seventy-five cents, fifty cents, and twenty-five cents. These may be purchased from the officers of the C. S. M. S., Ann Muschong, president; Kathryn Mercurio, vice-president; or Dorothy Coleman, secretary-treasurer.

Fontbonne Day Observed At New "Twix-Teen" Shop

Saturday, December 1, the "Twix-Teen" Shop will sponsor a Fontbonne Day. Four students from the college will act as hostesses: Rosemary Michelson, Virginia Lucas, Sally Gartner, and Vera Gauvin. Students are asked to drop in some time Saturday and pass their judgment on "Twix-Teens".

Mr. W. A. Hagle, from Chattanooga, Tenn., is the manager of the shop, which is being operated on a basis of "psychological approach". To those who want dash and chic to their clothes they really won't care what basis of approach is used. Here are to be found the junior sizes that have just enough sophistication to be charming.

To add to the atmosphere of the "Rendezvous for Youth", a lounge with school and college publications, telephones and stationery are at the disposal of the customers.

With a score of 154 points, Bernice, manager of the archery club, came in first ahead of Evelyn Papin, freshman, with a score of 105; Lorraine Lake, freshman, 104 points, and Evelyn Hanss, sophomore, also with a score of 104. A dull gold arrow pin engraved with the winner's name was presented.

Twenty-six entries were in the contest which was held on the Fontbonne campus. The four contestants with the highest scores competed for first place: each shot thirty-six arrows to determine the final results.

Sodalists Make Pilgrimage; Gain Jubilee Indulgence

The Sodality of Our Lady of Fontbonne College made the Jubilee Pilgrimage on Saturday, November 24 at 1:30 p. m. Arrangements were in charge of the officers. The group visited the required churches: St. Louis (New) Cathedral, St. Francis Xavier Church, St. John's Baglita, and the St. Louis (Old) Cathedral.

Those who made the pilgrimage are: Leontone Meyer, Antonette Ba-funno, Theresa Burmeister, Catherine Scullin, Clare Harder, Dorothy Coleman, Rosemary Donley, Estelle McCarthy, Margaret Salla, Daphne Ramirez, Ann O'Connell, Jane O'Connell, Catherine Burmeister, Winifred Gidley, Belva Dobyns, Mary Lou Sackbauer, Catherine McDonough, and Elizabeth Harrison.
